

Hull Wants Tide Gate Money

The town of Hull wants money from Cohasset for combined funds to be used for the replacement and/or repair of the hoist and stem on the Straits Pond tide gate.

The letter sent to Selectmen last week stated, "We cannot raise or lower the flood gate, therefore we are having problems with the water in Straits Pond." It has been theorized that the amount of ocean water and the level of salinity in the pond help to control the growth of algae and insect life in the water.

Through some error, the letter continued, the Cohasset Selectmen weren't notified of the proposal at Hull's annual town Meeting regarding the expenditure of $2500. Those funds were to be used in conjunction with funds received from Cohasset and Hingham for the tide gate project.

Selectmen Chairman Arthur Clark said last week that there was no money available to contribute to the job. "I could ask for a transfer from reserve funds from the Advisory Board," Clark said, "but with the gas and oil situation, I question whether they'd allow it."

Nazarene Church Opens

The Community Church of the Nazarene began services Sunday conducted by Rev. J. Scott Newell, Jr., of North Cohasset. The church was the former Pope Memorial Church.

United Methodist services were conducted at the North Cohasset church until Cohasset and Hull congregations voted to merge the services to the Hull Village Methodist Church.

The Rev. Newell is a graduate of Louisiana College, Eastern Nazarene College and Nazarene Theological Seminary.
